

Are you pregnant, trying to get pregnant, or have ever been pregnant?

We would like to talk to Black people with lupus about their pregnancy experiences

We are conducting a research study that involves a confidential telephone interview to explore your thoughts and feelings around your reproductive health. The goal is to try to improve reproductive healthcare for patients with lupus, in particular Black people who experience pregnancy. The interview will take about 45-60 minutes to complete and can be scheduled at your convenience. You will receive an e-gift card for your time.

To be eligible, you must:

- Identify as Black
- Be diagnosed with lupus
- Be between the ages of 18 and 50
- Speak English fluently
- Be pregnant now, in the past, or trying

If you would like more information about the study or are interested in participating, please scan the QR code or call or text Sarah at (412) 440-8790.

This study is being conducted by the University of Pittsburgh

Are you pregnant, trying to get pregnant, or have ever been pregnant?

We would like to talk to Black people with lupus about their pregnancy experiences

We are conducting a research study that involves a confidential telephone interview to explore your thoughts and feelings around your reproductive health. The goal is to try to improve reproductive healthcare for patients with lupus, in particular Black people who experience pregnancy. The interview will take about 45-60 minutes to complete and can be scheduled at your convenience. You will receive an e-gift card for your time.

To be eligible, you must:

- Identify as Black
- Be diagnosed with lupus
- Be between the ages of 18 and 50
- Speak English fluently
- Be pregnant now, in the past, or trying

If you would like more information about the study or are interested in participating, please scan the QR code or call or text Sarah at (412) 440-8790.

This study is being conducted by the University of Pittsburgh

